Adjudications on the Rise - How to Protect and Advance Your Position
Security of Payment – An Overview and Introduction to the Construction Contracts Act 2004

Contractors deserve fair payment for the work they perform in the same way as developers deserve to get what they believe they have paid for. But unfortunately a high proportion of subcontractors, contractors, owners and developers are writing off thousands of dollars each year because they believe payment dispute resolution is too costly, too time consuming and requires a law degree to navigate. However, it does not have to be this way!

David Court, Managing Director Contract Solutions International (CSI) will share with AIPM members his extensive experience of the Act from the perspective of an Adjudicator, an Applicant's advisor and a Respondent's advisor. David still believes that many industry members are either unaware of the Act and how it can assist them in securing (wrongly) disputed payments, or of their entitlements in relation to provisions prohibited by legislation.

David Court, Dip QS, Dip Arb, FRICS, FCI Arb, AIAMA, Expert Determiner, Registered Adjudicator (WA, QLD, NSW, SA, NT)

David has extensive experience in preparing and defending claims and in providing contractual advice in relation to a broad range of construction sectors, including building, civil engineering, marine, oil and gas, mining, mechanical and electrical, plumbing and painting, and has done so on behalf of owners, operators, contractors, subcontractors, consulting organisations and lawyers.

David regularly prepares and defends adjudication applications across the country and has undertaken numerous adjudication appointments as an adjudicator in WA, NT and QLD.
